1994-1996

For 1994 only, the model prefix and last serial number for each model produced is all that is available. For 1995 and 1996,

Guild resumed using separate serial number prefixes for each guitar model, plus the first and last serial numbers produced for each instrument during that period.

Dating Guild Instruments made in Tacoma, Washington after February 2005

FMIC began building Guild guitars in Tacoma, Washington in early 2005. Tacoma made Guild guitars have a serial number consisting of two letters and six digits.

As an example, we'll use a random number: TJ 037 016.

- The first letter "T", identifies the guitar as being made at our manufacturing facility in Tacoma, Washington.
- The second letter identifies the year of manufacture and is based on a dating system introduced by the Tacoma guitar manufacturing plant in 1998 that associated the letter "B" with that specific year. Successive years are associated with the alphabet in sequence. Using this system, the letter "J" would stand for the year 2006.
- The first three numbers of the serial number are derived from the "Julian" calendar which associates each day of the year to a respective number from 1 to 365 in numerical sequence. These three numbers identify the month and day of manufacture by their respective numerical order. In this case, the numbers 037 identify the instrument as being made on the 37th day of the year, which according to the Julian calendar, is February the 6th.
- The final three digits of the serial number refer to the unit number built on that specific day. In this example, 016 identifies this serial number as being from the 16th instrument built on that day.
- To recap this example: T (Built in Tacoma), J (Built in 2006), 037 (Built on February 6th), 016 (The 16th instrument built on that day)

Dating Guild Instruments made in New Hartford, Connecticut as of December 2008

The same dating system described above also applies to Guild instruments made in the New Hartford, CT factory. However, the first letter signifying the location of the manufacturing facility has been changed to "N" to signify "New Hartford".

As an example, let's dissect a random serial number: NM 016 002

- The first letter "N" identifies the guitar as being made at our manufacturing facility in New Hartford, Connecticut.
- The second letter identifies the year of manufacture and is based on a dating system introduced by the Tacoma guitar manufacturing plant in 1998 that associated the letter "B" with that specific year. Successive years are associated with the alphabet in sequence. Using this system, the letter "M" would stand for the year 2009, "N" for 2010, etc.
- The first three numbers of the serial number are derived from the "Julian" calendar which associates each day of the year to a respective number from 1 to 365 in numerical sequence. These three numbers identify the month and day of manufacture by their respective numerical order. In this case, the numbers 016 identify the instrument as being made on the 16th day of the year, which according to the Julian calendar, is January the 16th.

- The final three digits of the serial number refer to the unit number built on that specific day. In this example, 002 identifies this serial number as being from the 2nd instrument built on that day.
- To recap this example: N (Built in New Hartford), M (Built in 2009), 016 (Built on January 16th), 002 (The 2nd instrument built on that day)

Letter/Year Associations (second letter in serial #)

- I = 2005
- J = 2006
- K = 2007
- L = 2008
- M = 2009
- N = 2010
